PETROPERÚ'S INTERNATIONAL BONDS MAINTAIN A RECOVERY TREND IN THE MARKETS

Lima, Peru, July 28, 2026 – Petroleos del Peru S.A. "Petroperu" or "the Company" (OTC:PETRPE) announced today that the bonds' valuation recorded between April and July coincides with the improvement in financial results up to May and with the measures adopted to strengthen the company's sustainability.

Petroperú's international bonds are maintaining a recovery trend in financial markets, reflecting a more favorable investor perception of the Company. According to Bloomberg data, between April 1 and July 27, 2026, the bond maturing in 2032 rose from 79,166 to 86,111 points, while the bond maturing in 2047 increased from 69,805 to 72,154 points.

This trend coincides with the measures implemented by Petroperú's Board of Directors and Senior Management since April of this year to strengthen financial discipline, optimize management, and consolidate the Company's recovery process. Key actions include improved financial results, timely payment of financial obligations, continuity of operations, and the implementation of initiatives aimed at improving the efficiency and sustainability of the business—factors that have contributed to a more positive market perception.

The financial results support this trend. At the close of May 2026, Petroperú recorded accumulated net income of US$248 million, strengthened its EBITDA, and in June made timely payments on the interest of its international bonds and the principal and interest on its CESCE loan, showing a significant improvement compared to the same period of the previous year and consolidating the company's financial recovery process.

The valuation of international bonds is one of the main indicators used by markets to assess risk perception and the financial strength of issuing companies. In this context, its performance demonstrates the confidence that international investors and creditors are showing in Petroperú's recovery process and in the actions aimed at strengthening its sustainability.
